EPM Global Services Inc. Announces Expansion of its China Manufacturing Facility

Hong Kong, P.R.C. – EPM Global Services Ltd., a leader in the delivery of Electronics Manufacturing Services, has announced the expansion of its China manufacturing operations.

During the fourth quarter of 2009, EPM will be relocating its manufacturing facility within Baoan District, Shenzhen, P.R.C. The new location is closer to the Shenzhen city center. The relocation is to be completed by early December 2009.

The expansion includes increases in manufacturing capacity and operational support. The relocation also creates the framework to facilitate additional future expansion in both areas. The relocation and capacity increase is being driven by increased demand requirements from the Company's existing customer base as well as significant new customer growth in North America and Europe.

James McColl, President and Chief Executive of EPM, says that the China manufacturing expansion will allow EPM to provide its customers with more value added services and more global sourcing options. "With the increased capacity that the relocation will provide, EPM will be able to effectively support increasing demand from our present customer base as well as capitalize on new customer opportunities in North America and Europe. Our global infrastructure continues to successfully provide our customers with access to our unique Hybrid Manufacturing Solutions supply chain model that ties global supply chain reach with local program management. As a result, our customer focused EMS solutions allow EPM to tailor programs to fit our clients needs".

EPM has developed its Hybrid Manufacturing Solution (HMS) to leverage the inherent benefits of integrated global manufacturing. Cyril Fernandes, Senior Vice President Marketing and Corporate Development, describes HMS as a "...a fully scalable supply chain model, addressing the manufacturing transition of a program/product as it moves through its lifecycle. HMS allows small to mid volume organizations to take advantage of the global supply chain through local representation and support without the headache of time differences, language barriers, and cultural differences."

About EPM Global Services Ltd.
